Art Unit: 2624

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

2. Claims 9, 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

Claims 9, 10 define a program embodying functional descriptive material. However, claims 9, 10 do not define a computer-readable medium or memory and is thus non-statutory for that reason (i.e., "When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized" – Guidelines Annex IV). The examiner suggests amending the claim to embody the program on "computer-readable medium" or equivalent in order to make the claim statutory. Any amendment to the claim should be commensurate with its corresponding disclosure.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 9 recites the limitation "the programs" in line 2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. It should be changed to "the program".

Art Unit: 2624

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

6. Claims 1-5, 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Talluri et al (6,304,607).

As to claim 1, Talluri et al disclose a data reading method of reading variable length-coded data, the method comprising: a first code word reading step of sequentially reading a series of code words partitioned by a plurality of resynchronization markers (col. 2, line 55 - col. 3, line 21; col. 3, lines 53-67); and a resynchronization marker detecting step of detecting a next resynchronization marker before a reading position in the first code word reading step reaches the next resynchronization marker (col. 3, line 53 - col. 4, line 10).

As to claim 2, Talluri et al disclose a second code word reading step of sequentially reading the series of code words based on the next resynchronization marker detected in the resynchronization marker detecting step ((col. 3, line 53 - col. 4, line 10).

As to claim 3, Talluri et al disclose that the data is configured to be read in both forward and reverse directions (col. 4, line 1-32), the method further comprises a third code word reading step of reading the series of code words in an opposite direction to a reading direction in the first code word reading step (col. 4, line 1-32), and in the third code word reading step, the series of code words are sequentially read based on the resynchronization marker detected in the resynchronization marker detecting step (col. 4, line 1-32).

Art Unit: 2624

As to claim 4, Talluri et al disclose an error identifying step of identifying an error in a range of data read in the first code word reading step (col. 4, line 1-32).

As to claim 5, Talluri et al disclose that in the error identifying step, the error identification is made when the code word read in the first code word reading step is undecodable (col. 4, line 1-32).

Claims 7-10 recite limitations that are similar to those of claims 1-2. Therefore, they are rejected for the same reasons.

7. Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Kim et al (6,990,151) disclose an error concealment method.

9. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Phuoc Tran whose telephone number is (571) 272-7399. The examiner can normally be reached on MON-FRI.

If attempts to reach the examiner by telephone are unsuccessful, the examiner's supervisor, Eileen D. Lillis can be reached on (571) 272-6928. The fax phone number for the organization where this application or proceeding is assigned is 571-273-8300.
